FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Counselor creates workbook for those suffering loss

There is a very specialized field of nursing that cares for people with terminal diseases. Hospice care bereavement coordinators help those who are dying, as well as their families, with the same gentle care and attention as a nurse would give to any patient.

Marilyn Willis counseled countless families as a bereavement coordinator, supporting them through one of life's greatest hardships. She has felt the pain of losing someone close. She lost her mother when she was fifteen years old and now feels called to help others who are walking through the loss of loved ones. A licensed professional clinical counselor, Willis leads counseling support grief groups for people of all ages and from all walks of life.

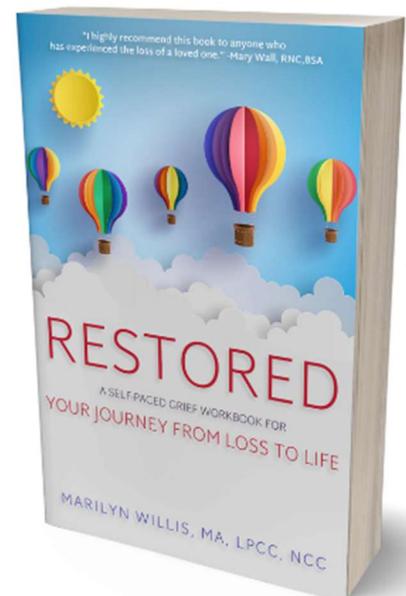

"This workbook is more of a labor of love than anything. I noticed many people whom I spoke with often were not in a position to attend groups or counseling. Some were not comfortable coming to groups either. This book helps bridge this unfortunate gap and gives people a safe place to work through a loss," said Willis.

Other professionals in the hospice care field felt similarly. Mary Wall, RNC, the President of the Board for Kauai Hospice and Former VP Nursing at Penrose Hospital, stated, "I highly recommend this book to anyone that has experienced the loss of a loved one. This book has offered me time to reflect on my own grief journey for which I am grateful."
